Shokalskiy

The Shokalskiy was originally designed and built in Finland for polar and oceanographic research in 1984. The ship is small, nimble, and ice-strengthened and is therefore capable of reaching the nooks and crannies that many larger ships cannot. She is equipped with a small fleet of inflatable Zodiacs, facilitating onshore landings and deeper exploration of polar landscapes and close encounters with wildlife. Ship-to-shore communications is available via satellite.

The Shokalskiy accommodates just 48 passengers and has a staff and crew of 30, including a doctor. She has 26 outside cabins with portholes, featuring a combination of private and shared bathroom facilities, all with ample storage areas.

Two dining rooms with unreserved seating serve buffet-style breakfast with table service; table-service lunch and dinner with main course choices, all from a daily changing menu. Cakes are served mid-afternoon, while coffee and tea is available 24 hours a day from a self-serve station.

Other public areas onboard include a lounge bar, which is open from late afternoon and evening, serving a wide selection of wines and spirits. The presentation room is ideal for evening presentations and group discussions. There is also a well stocked library, providing a collection of polar themed books, sauna and medical office.
